

How are our Community Learning Disability teams working right now?

You might have heard about Coronavirus.

Coronavirus can make some people very ill.

Because of the virus, all Health Care Services are very busy and working differently.

These services are called The NHS.

Our Learning Disability teams are part of the NHS.

We have been asked to help other teams in the NHS.

Some people from our teams might have to work in different teams for a while.

But if you need to talk to your local learning disability team you can still call them on the same number.

When you call, you might have to talk to someone from our team that you don't know.

Please don't worry.

The person you will talk to will try to help you.
